And apparently there is a great reason to use it.

When you stack remote VSTs in a Sonar bus or track FX bin on your host machine you get compounded latency in the chain (because it's a 2-way trip for every effect in the chain), and there's been no simple way to stack them on the slave machine (short of spending $50 or more for a not quite perfect solution). Effectchainer solves that problem. Beside which, you can now use DX effects with FX Teleport, which you couldn't do before! Did I mention that it's free?
