Subject: Fried A7N8X-E - why oh why ?

Hi y'all

I've been running an Asus A7N8X-E for about 18months now, a few weeks ago it started developing clicks and crackles. The last time I had this sort of nonsense from my PC (Epox 8KTA3) the mobo and the power supply melted together at the main power connector. Now the newer board has done the same thing. What the ... ?

Here's the config

A7N8X-E mobo
2800XP CPU
200 GB Seagate ATA system drive (dual boot 98 / XPro)
2 x 120GB WD ATA audio drives
Corsair TwinX 2 x 512MB PC3200
Matrox G550 Dual Head
3 x EDS
DVD Burner

Are AMD-CPU systems prone to this sort of thing ? Or is my video card sucking too much power thru the board ?

Meanwhile, I'm struggling to get any help from Asus over getting the thing repaired replaced, so I figured I'd build a new system anyway. Would an Intel CPU with an Asus P4C800 be a suitable option ? The reason I ask is that I'm thinking of getting a Zalman TNN enclosure (those things that look like a miniature panic room http://www.pccasegear.com/prod2187.htm), and this seems to be the only board on their comnpatibility list that's like to allow dual boot into W98SE / XP.

Anyone out there using a P4C800 board with PARIS ?

All suggestions appreciated

Thanks - Stewart.

Howdy

Maybe it's just me. My previous Paris system based on an Athlon mounted in an Epox 8KTA3 did the same thing - burned itself at the ATX power connector, went all unstable and crackly, and actually started smoking ! Talk about laying down hot tracks... 8)

How many EDS cards do you have installed and running ?

Cheers,

Stewart.

If you have any Behringer gear in your studio, this will happen. Doesn't matter if it's connected to the computer.

;o)

Ha ha Yeah the day I sold my 24 channel Behringer desk was a very good day.
Not for the guy who bought it.
