

---

Subject: Effects Question

Posted by Rich.Kelley on Tue, 08 Jul 2014 00:37:31 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I'm considering buying a number of Mike Audet's effects. I have a number of Chuck Duffy's effects already on my 2.1 system. How do Chuck's and Mike's effects, especially ones with the same name like No Limit, interact on the same system? I have mixes that use Chuck's effects (specifically no limit and maybe a couple of the reverbs).

I assume the effects that came with Paris will just still be there.

Since I'm here, will Mike's effects come with instructions on how to install them? It's been so long that I put Chuck's effects in that I can't remember how I did it.

Thanks.

---

---

Subject: Re: Effects Question

Posted by mikeaudet on Tue, 08 Jul 2014 11:32:03 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi Richard,

The updated effects will replace Chuck's version because the file name is the same. But, I don't think I did anything to the effects that would make the old version preferable. I added meters and added in support so that they do the right math at 44.1, among other things.

The way the PARIS effects work is that they look in a special folder (C:\Windows\SysWOW64\Ensoniq\PlugIns) for dll and ini file pairs. As long as each pair has a different name, the effects driver will attempt to load them.

All the best!

Mike

---