

---

Subject: Problem creating a click track
Posted by stamatis on Thu, 29 Jul 2010 05:05:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Wow, i've been away for a couple of years. So glad to see the community alive and well.

I have created click tracks for years (as suggested in the many FAQs and tutorials I've dnld from Paris newsgroups) and it has always worked just fine.

However, for some reason the grid lines are never visible and when I paste multiples I get 64th notes. Minor time divisions is not turned on and I'm at 4|4 120bpm just to test.

Anybody have any ideas? I really don't want to uninstall and reinstall if I don't have to.

I appreciate any suggestions
thanks

---

Subject: Re: Problem creating a click track
Posted by kerryg on Thu, 29 Jul 2010 05:30:25 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Huh. That's really weird.

This is probably a dumb question, but just to be sure - you've gone down to the very bottom of the Edit Window to the bars and beats ruler and clicked the darkened rectangle at its far left end in order to have that ruler contribute its bars and beats to the grid, right?

---

Subject: Re: Problem creating a click track
Posted by Ted Gerber on Fri, 30 Jul 2010 00:01:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Just in cas you weren't aware, Mike Audet has produced a metronome for loading on a channel insert.

I used to record and "paste multiple" for clicks all the time, but now I just use this.

If you need a visual click for editing drums, perc etc later, you can always bounce the project with the insert running.

Here's the link to his site.

<http://www.ensoniq.ca/metronome.html>

Ted

---

---

Subject: Re: Problem creating a click track
Posted by stamatis on Fri, 30 Jul 2010 04:51:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Thanks Kerry and Ted.

Kerry, that was it. You nailed it.
I can't believe I forgot about that!!

Ted, while I was having problems with the click. I did find & purchase the HEARTBEAT plug-in that Mike made. I had a problem downloading the file; but, Mike took care of me this a.m. So, I'm anxious to try it out tomorrow. too sleepy now.

Thanks so much for the help!

---

---

Subject: Re: Problem creating a click track
Posted by kerryg on Fri, 30 Jul 2010 05:05:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Excellent, glad to hear it!

---