Hi James,
Yes as usual Dell is so innovative... not.
This type thing on desktops and laptops have been popular in the gamer/dyi world for at least a decade. Figures they wait till now to offer it to the masses.

This one is allot cooler and at the same time more disturbing. :)

With the ADC discount, you could get a MacBook with 2.0GHz Intel Core 2 Duo, 1GB memory, 80GB HD, and a combo drive for around $879.20. Did I mention that it will run Mac OSX, UNIX, LINUX, Windows XP, and Windows Vista? It will also run more software.

To each his own. I'm well aware that companies like Alienware have offered colored computers for years. Now that Dell has jumped on the band wagon, I would hope the fruit colored computer comments will end. I personally have never owned a fruit colored computer;)

P.S. I'm aware that Dell now owns Alienware.
