Fred, It may be the best sounding daw on the planet but I need a change. A company that is actually fixing the bugs and not screwing people over with stupid pace authorization and continuing to sell the app that is not even supported? That would be nice.

Plus the features in cubase already have me very excited (we'll see how they work), but I won't miss the 16 channel submixes that's for sure. So far I count about 20 features I like better in Cubase but I don't have the app yet. It's supposed to come this week or next.

Whatever helps you make music is the best choice period. I hope DJ is actually doing lots of recording and not just dinking around in a dark basement with tesla coils firing.

I got my HDSP 9652 installed last night after resetting my bios to no longer assign IRQs to slots and be a Plug and Play system. The install could not have been any easier. Nice.

they are very rich in harmonic content. they add some air to the mix, and no need to use ozone at the same time.
