Scott was one of the most unbelievable musicians I've ever seen/heard/experienced.

Sad day.

Sounds like he touched a lot of lives sharing great music. That's a major loss.

I wish I had the 45 of It's For You. It was written by Lennon and McCartney, as was the flip side which was a song called Man In the Lighthouse, also by Lennon and McCartney. Scott's manager at the time had pretty deep pockets (for a 15 year old kid) and purchased the rights to these songs. I still remember how this recording blew me away. It was every bit as good as anything getting radio airplay in 1964.

I wish I could be in Ft. Worth right now. All my old musician buddies are there today at the funeral and they've been sending me e-mails. I send one of them an MP3 of one of Macle's tunes. They loved it. That's the genre we were all into back then and still love. It's great to see that there are folks who are still influenced by these beautiful melodic Lennon/MaCartney/George Martin'esque songwriting/ production ideas, are keeping them alive and taking them to a new level.

DJ, I am a big L&M fan (who isn't?) but have never heard of these songs.
Is there any way to purchase a copy, even if only an MP3?

Thanks

DJ-

sorry to hear about this. It's frightening when we check obits for folks our age or younger, too...!

Speaking of Unknown Beatles songs (or little known)

This is from Wikipedia:

Your Name, I'll Keep You Satisfied (1963); From A Window (1964);

Love (1968)

To See You Again (1964)

In addition, McCartney wrote songs under his own name for other artists prior to the Beatles' split; notably Badfinger's 1969 hit Come and Get It. He also penned the song Woman (1966) for Peter & Gordon under the pseudonym Bernard Webb, to see if the song would gain success without his reputation. It did.

I remember several of these. Good tunes.

That's the song all right.....now picture the Beatles singing it with George Martin producing. That's pretty much what you would have from Scott's band.

DJ.....Very sorry to hear of your loss. He seemed amazing!

I too, lost a bandmate, and dear friend, and the audiio industry lost out on on a High Fidelity advocate!

Dean Roumanis worked at Krell manufacturing, running the whole operations of the company. He was the COO and part owner. Krell, of course, makes high end high fidelity components.

He also had a duo wherre he played bass with a guitar player and they did some innovative, creative music.

He also played piano and keys with me. You can actually see and hear him playing at my concert, since I put up a clip of one of the pieces on my site.

Here is an obituary for him at Sterophile magazine:

<http://www.stereophile.com/news/080706roumanis/>

and here is the link to the video and his brief music bio with some pictures.

He was ONLY 52 and full of life!!! Very sad indeed!

The bit from the ruttles where Jagger riffs on the ruttles always trying to sell them a song is priceless.

Lou,

I'm very sorry to hear this. The obituary was very interesting and humorous at the end. :)

Did he design that amazing power amp they are marketing now that adjusts voltage to signal level (zero distortion)?

I honestly don't know. It was more likely the owner who engenered it though.
Dean had a basic knowledge of electronics, but he was not a full fledged engeeneer. He used to have stuff fixed for me once in awhile and he would say he would take it to one of the guys in the factory that knew what they were doing. But he probably had some input on it though.

Years ago, he gave me an Aragorn power amp, which I still use with my Thiel CS-2 speakers for my home hi-fi system. When I called Aragorn to ask about upgrading it, they said it was one of the first amps they made and that it didn't even have a serial number or model number yet. They remembered it and Dean though. It is so smooth sounding.

Dean was also a neighbor of mine for some years before they moved about 15minutes away. Great guy. I think about him often and am still shocked!

Sorry. I forgot to post here about putting up the video. I actually have a whole DVD of the entire concert, but never put it up for sale or otherwise on my site. I get lazy!! LOL I got some great musicians to participate, and it came off really nice.

I was under the impression that people needed Quicktime 7 to view it but I am not sure about that. Maybe it is not needed.

Sorry for your loss as well.

Krell. Ahhhhh. I have always lusted after a stack of Krell Monoblocks driving a pair of Apogees - not the little ones, but the big-ass ones as tall as I am. Heard that combo once in a audiophile store and had to go home and change my shorts. It was that sweet. Bass that just reached out and kicked you in the chest. But clean.
