There's an interesting discussion going on over at PSW about this DAW, was wondering if anyone's heard of it, tried it, using it

I'm hesitant to use this program for the same reason I won't buy a KIA.

back in "69 we used to play "beat the reaper" on the presses by setting them to max auto repetition and watch the fingers fly....

I've been checking it out a bit! Seems like it could be cool because the guy behind it seems to be really into it and puts out updates seems like every time I check. So it would seem that whatever it's lacking now will be fixed or added....uh... soon (remember that one), but this guy seems to mean it.

I guess it's very like Vegas in style and look and is designed to be very straight forward and simple (which, if true, is great, because me like straight forward and simple!!!!!!!)

It's got a 64-bit engine (whatever that means), and ADC, midi, etc. I haven't really used it yet though.

The best part.......it's FREE! I guess that will change when they get to offical 1.0 or something, but I think it will still be very cheap, especially compared to the others.

Does "Reaper" come with a "more cowbell" feature?
