I've had luck taking another cd and pushing it 1/2 way or so into the drive while holding onto the end. It seems to bump the one thats stuck and they popped out for me. Had it work twice so far in my wifes car - just when you hear the other one starting to move pull the one you holding out fast. Good luck.

Mike,
Look for a little hole big enough for a paperclip just below/above the tray on the faceplate. Turn it off and try poking a paperclip end right into that sucker. It may not have one in which case just sell the = car
but charge extra for the CD.
Really,

Any ideas on how to eject a CD from a car stereo when the eject button won't do the trick? I'm ready to try out the needle nose pliers, but before I get to breakin' the CD, I thought maybe I'd see if anyone had a better idea.

Thanks gents,
MR

Just get a screwdriver, jam it into the slot and leverage it up and down until therer is an area of the slot is big enough to reach in and grab the CD with a pair ofneedle nosed pliers.
