OK, now I haven't done this before. Nobody is under any obligation. Only do this if you want to, and only donate what you want to.

However, it has become clear that my old UPS is getting cranky, or has got cranky, and after all I did only spend $185, and she's a cheap Asian import, and for whatever reason it doesn't like it's new home... and a number of people expressed a desire to contribute... so...

On the newsgroup website, you will now find a new little donation button:

<http://news.parisnewsgroup.com>

As I said, there is no obligation. Do as you will. I'd buy it myself, but I ran out of beer money in this pay and I don't want to do it again next month. ;o) So since a few generous souls put forward a desire to donate, I guess I'll allow it. ;o) I'll still put in whatever the gap is as required. I'm doing my research into UPS at the moment. Hopefully we'll get a better one than last time. If you donate too much I'll get a better one. We'll see how we go.

The server itself seems to be fine still, other than the fan seems upset and slow, but I have a new processor and fan which I will put in shortly, maybe over the weekend... soon as I can find time to google info on PIII slot I processors and changing them. ;o) The backup server also seems happy. The system's all good except the UPS.

For those who didn't see the first post, the reason for the outages eventually became clear when the server refused to run on the UPS power any longer. and had to switch to mains, so we are currently without a UPS on the server, which is no good of course. I get paid in a week, so I'll be buying one over Easter weekend.

Hopefully my link works. Paypal said it would. ;o)

We have about a week until purchase date I expect.

Thanks in advance to anybody who donates.

Cheers,
Kim.

Look, and I got it and everything! :o)

Thanks Don. I only had the button working for minutes, and already we're on our way. :o)

Excellent work.

Is there a currency conversion? I didn't think of that. I had the choice and could have set the thing to do AU dollars, but figured as most participants are in the states it would be better to let people do it in their native currency.

Maybe I should change it.

Oh well, people can change it manually if they wish...

The Iowa PARIS Relief Fund has sent a small donation. It would have been more, but the rest of our funds have been squandered on administration costs. Corona's not cheap you know! ;>)

Hi Kim,

I sent some money (not enough. I feel bad now.). I'll send more if it's needed.

Could you let us know what the target amount is and how close we are?
Thanks!

Kim,

The moolah is on its way.

I was so freakin' lonely here at work when the server went down. I really missed you guys! (Scary - I know!)

Thanks for all you do!

Kim, here's a small donation for your trouble. Thanks for all of your good work. It's really appreciated. Hope you get enough cash for the UPS.

Sincerely,

Hey Kim,

I sent some money - hope it helps the cause.

It's the least we can do considering all you've done for us.

Well, it appears we're going along nicely. :o)

We've currently just hit $300US, which converts to just over $400 Australian, hence we could already buy this without me even putting any in...

<http://www.scorptec.com.au/index.php?prdid=10212>

Or this next one might be a good one. It's an extra $100, but I'm guessing we'll get a couple more donations, and I'm happy to top it up. This one has AVR (as recommended by DC) and provides "Up to 100 minutes backup time" which, even at half that, is enough to cover 98% of outages let's face it...

<http://www.scorptec.com.au/index.php?prdid=8619>

All in all I'm overjoyed at the response guys. Incredible. You guys really do love this place don't you. :o)

Something like that should be enough I'd think, but really, we can spend as much as we like on a UPS. The sky's the limit:

<http://www.scorptec.com.au/index.php?catid=24&subid=91>

....mind you the most expensive units there are designed of course of multiple servers with monitors etc.

Let's let it trickle along and see where we land. My guess is we'll be able to buy something pretty nice. Don't worry about going the second dip just yet Mike. ;o) If we get up to the $600-$800 Australian mark, we'll get very nice unit.

No more lonely days without a NG.

There certainly is a sinking feeling when you press the button and it doesn't respond isn't there? ;o)

Cheers,
Kim.

AVR rocks, but I do like the APC and Tripp-Lite units better than the Belkin.

Try to get at least a 1000VA unit if you can.

best,

Thanks Don.

I don't think we have Tripp-Lite units over here, but we're getting close to being able to afford one of these:

http://www.apc.com/resource/include/techspec_index.cfm?base_sku=BR15001

I think the server only uses about 100watts, or not even, so this should give us around 50 minutes of backup time or probably more. Complete with AVR and the rest...

You're not the only person who's recommended APC...

Cheers,
Kim.

That looks like a good one. I have actually been sitting at the computer when the mains went down with one like this in use.

Not a blink.

We want you to get one that will keep running for at least 3 days just in case you go pub crawling.

;o) Hehe, which I am likely to do as you know... ;o)

Possibly one of these might be in order:

http://www.apc.com/resource/include/techspec_index.cfm?base_sku=BR24BP

They don't last three days, but I estimate we'd get over three hours out of the system with the backup battery attached, as opposed to probably one hour without. Of course if I go pub crawling there's still going to be trouble.
;o)

Perhaps I should just give you my cell phone number so you can call me if it ever goes down while I'm not watching. ;o)

Cheers,
Kim.
