Hi all, I thought I would share some photos of a project I just finished.

I started with my Korg SG-1 that I bought in 1985

I gutted it and removed the stock Korg 76 note keybed and replaced it with a 61 key FATAR hammer action keybed.

leaving it looking like this.

then I filled it up again with 1. an Emu 1616m microdock (under the cover to the left of the keys. Then top left to right 2. the Emu 1212m mother and daughter cards, 3. an Intel mini ITX motherboard with a dual core 775 CPU and 2 gigs of RAM, 4. power supply, 5. HD, 6. MIDI card from a StudioLogics SL 161, patchbay. To do this I had to extend and box in the back 1.5 inches Leaving me with an awesome open source VSTi keyboard..

Thanks for looking..

That is beautiful work and a very creative use of an old keyboard.

I might be contacting you for some more info

Nicely done

Thanks guys

Rick- I find that if I set my socks out 2 days before and check the day before I'm good to go at least 50%percent of the time...As for the 88 note M1 I'll have to ponder that

Don- feel free to contact me and thanks..

Ted- thanks man

i like the two day lead time on the socks though there is a caveat in my household, sleeping with fists would put them away and i'd forget about taking them out. kind of a who's on first thing with socks.
