Hey Nappy.. Yes it does run PT -M-Powered. That's one ogf the main reasons for styaing with M_audio interfaces..

You have far higher standards than I do, but I've been using a Traktor USB interface for a while now with pretty much zero problems. However, I'm sure there's someone out there who will warn you about jitter and judder and mudder and shudder and who knows what else. Mine sound fine to me. Actually better than fine.

I've been using the M-Audio Pro-Mix control for well over a year now, and sounds great, and works a charm.
Nice sounding convertors, at to my ears for the work I do.

God, I wish I could type properly..
Using PT 7.4 as well, although no Leopard support yet, and if I want to use it (7.4) on pc you have to buy another upgrade, as the 7.3 / 7.4 upgrade is not cross platform, or so it seems.

I was reading on geaslutz that it will be Pro Tools 7.4 Mpowered.

One of Maudios engineers was on hand responding to users questions. One thing that he stated that was interesting was that.

-"USB2 is fine, but is not as robust as firewire for big audio streams.

- " The reason m-audio has produced these new USB products was due to the sheer fact that USB is more widley "Available" than firewire on both MAc & PCs).

So, there is not secret m-audio USB 2 sauce that maybe USB 2 audio interfaces are ready for primtime..

I'll be getting a 410 or 1814,or just maybe that new Por Fire 26
