Good educational materials are priceless.

You know for years I know what sounds good to my ears but the hardest thing to do is to learn the way to recreate what you hear. Through the last educational recording materials I purchased I learned that the Acoustic guitar sound that I love to hear is a six string with nashville tuning. I have also reaffirmed that my ears love ribbon mics...which I still dont have. I really really need to find a way to get into a ribbon mic. I really want to get a stereo ribbon mic like the one from Cascade. I have an extra Mackie HR824 never been out of he box that I think I am going to have to sell. I have been holding onto it for years just incase someone stuck their headstock into the speaker cone.
