And this is not a racist comment. It's a comment based on seeing too many kids dressed like drug dealers and gang bangers, listening to music that promotes violence against damn near everyone, prostitution, and drug use.

I just think the music is boring and unimaginative after 30 years of hearing a beat made from a machine and/or a loop and other backing instruments that were recorded by someone else. As far as the lyric and message go, I don't listen to it enough to know if there are positive messages along with the negative stuff that is so heavily publicizedand this is becausethe music is boring and unimaginative after 30 years of hearing a beat made from a machine and/or a loop and other backing instruments that were recorded by someone else.

Maybe kids & young adults are just tired of watching MTV & having to hear that half the lyric in each rap song consist of a single word: "<beep>". lol

Basically I agree.

I am not a big fan of rap and I am not at all happy with the negative effect

- Fox News.

It is true that album sales for rap were down in 2006 about 20% from an all time high in 2004. But digital sales (downloads) were considerably higher, Justin Timberlake's "Sexyback" and Beyonce's "Irreplaceable" were among industry leaders.

Rap and R&B combined (the report does not break out hip-hop, but most of the R&B numbers are in fact hip-hop), are the biggest sellers killing the combined sales of Country, Classical, Jazz and Metal. This is in the down year.

Year End Factoids:

Overall music purchases in 2006 exceeded the 1 Billion sales plateau for the second consecutive year; 1.2 billion (2006) vs. 1 billion (2005).

The last two weeks of 2006, music sales exceeded 47.4 million (week ending 12-

24) and 45.0 million (week ending 12/31), representing the 2 biggest weeks in the history of Nielsen SoundScan. The previous record was Christmas week 2005 with 44.7 million music purchases.

More than 580 million digital tracks were purchased during 2006; an increase of 65% over 2005.

records were broken:

-- Digital track sales blew away the previous sales record with 02/07/2007 01:29 AM 2006 U.S. Music Purchases Exceed 1 Billion Sales Page 6 of 9 http://home.businesswire.com/portal/site/google/index.jsp?ndmViewId=news_view&newsId=20070104005813&newsLang=en a new record high of 30.1 million track sales (previous record was 19.9 million, week of 12/24-1/1/05).

-- Digital album sales reached the 1 million plateau for the first time with sales exceeding 1.2 million (previous record was 12/24/06 with 855,000 sales).

-- Beyonce's "Irreplaceable" track sets the mark for the biggest selling week for an individual Digital Track, with sales of 269,000 (previous record was Justin Timberlake's "Sexyback" at 250,000 sales).

-- Three different songs broke the previous mark for the biggest selling week for a Digital Song (combining all versions of the same song) with Fergie's "Fergalicious" setting the new record with sales of 295,000. Both Beyonce's "Irreplaceable" (269,000) and Akon's "Smack That" (252,000) had greater sales than the previous record set by Justin Timberlake's "Sexyback" (previous record was 250,000 sales).

iTunes store - 2 Billion downloads so far.

I hope to hear more real music and songs in 2007. R&B, Rock etc.

Gene,

As far as Fox news is concerned, it's just part of the partisan, agenda driven circus. It doesn't even come close to the arrogance of a news service that deigns itself to spoonfeed us "all the news that's fit to print", as if we should bow down to their judgmental largesse as far as what is "fit to print". There isn't an objective press anymore IMHO..hasn't been for 40 years..... so to get the whole picture, I think it's best to watch all news sources.

Regards,

Deej

NAMM reported that musical instruments sales were up and DJ equipment was on its way down. For five years DJ Equipment sales were higher than MI sales. I don't know how this will effect studios. It would be nice to see more musicianship back in popular music.

Don't discount the musicality of a common wood saw when bent in an S shape and played with a violin bow, saw that at a symphony concert and hey, it worked.

I saw a band do a vacuum cleaner solo once, it wasn't any more exciting than a turntable solo but the stage was cleaner afterwards.
