So is it kind of the opinion of the group that a decent windows 10 computer with the right slot availability and a magma chassis with Mike's new drivers is a pretty stable system? I'm trying to figure out if that's the way I want to go since my XP computer took a crap. My old system was a magma chassis with three cards two expansion chassis and a 442 running XP with Mike's drivers. I want to move this over to a Windows 10 computer. I wouldn't imagine there problems awaiting me as I think Windows 10 is Windows 10 correct? And by the way this computer would have no internet duties whatsoever.

Is it possible anyone who is in the US who might have some insight into this could call me? My number is one 801-520-5264. I need to know some information about Windows 10 64-bit and the Paris drivers and Paris 3.0. And pace. Thank you. I would like to go pick up a computer and get this done in the next day or so if possible while I have time. Thanks in advance

Hey Barkingpig, do you still need help? The thread is over a month old and it sounded like you needed help immediately. Also, I can't help you with PACE at all.
